"One of them said, 'Do you know who we're talking about today?'" Barakat said, explaining how the officers asked the man he was about to call from his cell phone what he was doing. "I said, 'I'm not going to talk to you,'" Barakat explained, remembering that the police chief was sitting in the middle of the three officers and the handcuffed man. Dedicated to my husband, who spent most nights listening to all manner of "Gremlins" tapes, including "Night of the Living Dead," "Battleship," "The Phantom Menace," "Attack of the 50 Foot Monster" and "Zombie," along with a myriad of others...A week before she was shot dead by police two weeks ago, 29-year-old Deah Shaddy Barakat said: "I'm not saying I'm gonna get better, but I may give it my best shot." He had just finished a 12-hour night shift at a police station when he pulled up in front of it around 5am on Sept. 15, 2012, wearing a tarp across his shoulders in case of an emergency, police said at the time. "I saw three guys at the desk trying to get my badge and they pulled my badge away and said 'Hey, you should really get out of here.'" A few minutes later, at the police station's door, he saw two officers at the foot of a bed, one holding a badge, the other a pistol that they had taken out of his waistband when he told them he wasn't giving the badge away..
